NC State University Hosts a Designer Forum

North Carolina State University on October 7th held a Designer Forum. Approximately 80 design firms attended this event. The designers represented were Architects, Engineers, Interior Designers and other consultants. This forum was presented by the University to accomplish several goals.

- Provide an opportunity for design firms to meet the NC State University Facilities Design Staff.
- Provide the designers a look ahead to the future expenditures relative to Capital Projects.
- Provide the design community a better understanding of how the Office of the University Architect, Capital Project Management and Design and Construction Services operate.
- Provide designers an opportunity to network with each other. These relationships could lead to architectural firms partnering on projects as well as utilizing consultants met during this forum.

Feedback surveys were completed by the designers and from comments received it appears the event was successful. Comments were very positive relative to the material presented and the networking session. The University will be looking at the possibility of scheduling another such event in the near future.
